Per my chat with the Clerk's receptionist moments ago, I am forwarding my e-exchange with Lisa Bausch, and I am now requesting a copy of the 177 pages of comments that Ms. Bausch described. My hope is that I may pick-up the copies at the Temple of Justice in the afternoon tomorrow, Friday, May 27. Please phone me to confirm that I may do so. Thank you.

There are 177 pages of comments to the RPC's. This does not include your submission. At .30 per page, the cost for copying is $53.10 + tax and any postage for mailing.

I would like your estimate. If it exceeds my budget, I may stop in to skim through them in-person and then obtain copies of selected ones.

These are only available by copying. The copying charge is .30 per page, plus tax and postage. I will have to go through and pull the comments to the RPC's and then will give you an estimate of the costs if you still want copies.

Lisa Bausch:

Please advise me of the number of submissions you received commenting on the proposed changes to the Rules of Professional Conduct (comment period closed 4/29/05). I'm interested in reading them and in obtaining copies of some or all. Please advise me of the most economical way in which I may do so (e.g., electronic copies of e-submissions, and scanned PDFs of paper submissions). Of course, I do not need another copy of what I submitted myself. Thank you.
